1250 Students For High School

Point Loma Junior-Senior high school will open its doors next Monday morning to approximately one hundred more students than were enrolled a year ago. According to Principal Clarence R. Swenson about twelve hundred and fifty students will report this fall and enrollment will be close to the thirteen hundred mark by the second semester. Fortunately, the school will be somewhat better able to take care of the increased load than it was last year because of the completion of the new four room shop addition this summer. Plans have also been drawn for an additional four classroom unit which should be completed by the second semester.

Much work has been done at the school to put it in excellent shape for the new school year. Several thousand dollars have been spent in shearing off cornices and replacing tile and brick fire walls with steel reinforced concrete caps to reduce earthquake hazards. Contractors and architects have declared Point Loma High to be one of the best constructed schools in the city and, with certain minor hazards now removed, parents may feel assured that their children will be reasonably safe at school even tho a fairly heavy quake should take place while school is in session.

The new shops will be equipped with modern machinery and will afford an enlarged vocational opportunity to Point Loma boys. Auto shop will be offered for the first time at the school, as well as wood shop, print shop and general metal work. The former cramped quarters have been replaced by large, modern efficient shop units in the new building and the old shop rooms have been remodeled into satisfactory academic classrooms. Much painting, repairing and thoro renovating has been done to make the school ready for the opening day.

Several changes have taken place on the faculty over the summer. Myron Green, popular music director, and Frank Doyle, chairman of the English department, have been transferred to Hoover High. Mrs. Hilda Giles of the history department and Miss Ruth Hall, school nurse, have been granted leaves of absence for a year for travel and study. Mrs. Fay Perry of the home economics department will teach at San Diego State College next year. Miss Maude Kishler, general secretary and registrar, will become financial secretary at Hoover High. A number of new faces will be seen on the faculty by returning students. Mrs. Miller, of Hoover High, will return to Point Loma and have charge of the glee clubs. Miss Caroline Haddock, Stanford graduate who taught in northern California last year, will be added to the English department. Lucien Atherton will take Mrs. Giles' place this year in United States History. Replacements for Mrs. Perry and Miss Hall have not been definitely decided upon as this issue goes to press. Henry Jewel, from Roosevelt Junior high, will be part time auto shop instructor. Mrs. Merle Hayes, former financial secretary who has been employed in the auditor's office the past year, will return to the school as general secretary. Edward Janowski, instructor in music, and Harold Moody, remedial English teacher, have been promoted to full time teaching assignments this year. Charles Wilson, who was a teaching cadet in the science department last year will teach science half time. He will also assist Coach Beerkle with the football squad again this year.

New students have been registering at Point Loma all during the past week. Students of last year made out their programs before school closed. New students who have not registered by Monday cannot be taken care of until Tuesday by counselors and will save themselves much fruitless waiting around by not coming on the busy opening day. All students of last year and graduates of elementary schools in the district whose records were sent to Point Loma are expected to report by 8:30 Monday. Two assemblies will be held, one for the new 7th graders in study hall 108, and the other in the auditorium for the rest of the student body. Assemblies will be followed by home room meetings for the giving out of announcements and students' programs. Since many classes are fail to report the first day may forfeit their registrations in certain classes.

Girls are expected to wear regulation uniforms.

Lockers will be assigned but each student should provide himself with a combination lock (not a key-type padlock) for his locker. For students' convenience excellent locks are sold at the school at cost, but good combination locks may also be purchased at hardware stores. The first day of school will be a half day session for students and lunch will not be served in the cafeteria. Street car and bus passes will be sold at noon in the office. Parents of new students desiring further information may call the general office, Bayview 3170.

Holiday Visitors

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Varney, jr., of Alhambra and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Varney of Los Angeles motored down to spend a few days with Mr. Varney's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Varney, sr., of 4728 Saratoga avenue.

Miss Martha Vema of Los Angeles and Miss Elsie Degner of Glendale were guests for the final summer holidays of Mrs. Caroline Joos and son Carl F. Joos, 4328 Muir avenue. One day was enjoyed at the Exposition another in Mexico at the Hotel Rosonta and a third day was spent in appreciation of the local splendor including La Jolla.

Mr. and Mrs. James Hedges who have just returned from Colorado Springs, to their winter home at the Simms apt. on Del Mar avenue, had as their week end guest Mr. Tomas Cowan of Los Angeles. Mr. Cowan and Mrs. Hedges are brother and sister and their visit here was the first in many years. This week end the Hedges will visit Mr. and Mrs. Cowan at their home in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Sara M. Wolff of Pasadena is spending a fortnight with Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Simms of Simm's Apt.

Here from Annapolis

Lt. and Mrs. James S. Willis and two small children formerly of Annapolis are now making their home at 4415 Long Branch avenue.

Home Again

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Thomas of 4430 Long Branch avenue, have returned from a month's motor trip to Vancover and British Columbia. Both the Redwood and Pacific highways were enjoyed.

Todds Have Seen The Coast

The fact that nearly two thirds of the license plates seen on the roads between San Diego and Vancouver, Canada, were orange and black, indicated to Mr. and Mrs. Elmer A. Todd, who have just returned from an auto trip, that many Californians had, like themselves, determined no longer to have to admit that they had only a picture postal-card knowledge of the marvels of the Pacific slope which people come from all over the world to see.

Passing thru beautiful Santa Barbara and the forests of apple trees surrounding Watsonville, to Monterey they took the scenic seventeen-mile drive to the place with the biblical name, made famous by the anomalous "Aimie", and sped on thru San Francisco, to the Redwood forest; then on past the Sea Lion caves and other beautiful points of the Oregon Coast Highway to Long Beach, Washington. Here a straight thirty-mile drive over the hard sand at low tide proved this to be, without doubt, the longest beach in the world.

With the greatest respect for speed cops, (when in evidence), the next evening found them crossing the ferry from Port Angeles to the beautiful Victoria, B. C., with its wonderful Buchart's Gardens and other places of interest. Motoring up to Nanaimo, they next went by ferry to Vancouver, where the Hudson Bay company and other large concerns form an almost insurmountable temptation to make transactions which may cause trouble later when returning across the line into our native land.

On the return trip, the Columbia River Highway demonstrated how a few years can change the condition which had prevailed "Since first the flight of years began", for the woodman's axe and the honk and brrr of the automobile have made it impossible to take the poet's advice to "Lose thyself in the continuous woods where rolls the Oregon and knows no sound save his own dashing'.' However, the grandeur remains, and with Crater Lake, Mt. Rainier, The Yosemite, and the giant trees, one is like the Frenchman who, after using up all the English descriptive adjectives he knew—"Beautiful! Grand! Superb!! Magnifique!!,, ended with the American "Purty Good!!"

After all this the Todds say they are glad to get back to their little home by the sea.

John Alford Twice Victor

John Alford golf addict was doubly proud this week when amid a host of enthusiasts he made for his second time a hole in one at the La Jolla Country club of which he is a member, the scene of the excitement was the fifteenth green. As a member of the Jessop's Union Hole in One club, Mr Alford now boasts his second pin.

Visitor Leaves

Mrs. J. A. Levin (Hatti Krouse) of Chicago, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Ostrom for several weeks, left Tuesday for her home. Mrs. Levin plans to witness the opening of the Boulder dam and to sojourn for some time in Salt Lake City.

Leaves for East

Helene Richards left Monday for a stay of three months in the East. She will visit various Eastern cities and will be for some time with her aunt and uncle on the Richards' farm at Lockport, N. Y., the family's ancestral home. Miss Richards plans to return by way of the Panama canal.

Miss Edna Johnson of 2939 Owen street is spending the summer end week in the Laguna mountains.

Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Woodley of Hemet, Mr. Warren Burdine and Mrs. R. R. Boss and sons, Jimmy and Tomy of Riverside were holiday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lownes in their home on Brighton avenue. Mr. Burdine is the father of Mrs. Lownes and Mrs. Boss the sister of Mrs. Lownes.

Scholarship Given Local High School Boy

For his devotion to musical activities and his interest in the printing trade, Austin Hartvigsen, June 1936 graduate of Point Loma high school, has been awarded a $900 scholarship at Miramonte School and Junior College at Atascadero, California, a private school for boys where the young men are given individual tutorship in their studies as well as social training and the appreciation of fine arts.

In addition to being a regular student of the school, Austin is to establish and manage a small print shop in the College building where other boys may learn the rudiments of the trade. He will also direct student glee club and assist in other musical activities.

Mr. and Mrs. Hartvigsen, enjoyed a holiday motor trip north to Atascadero, with Austin and his baggage, last Saturday. We found splendid buildings and campus with a delightful setting in the hills of California 350 miles to the north and recommend Miramonte College to any parent whose boy is in senior high or junior college age.

Strand Theatre To Give Varied Programs

The new management of the STRAND THEATRE wishes to take this opportunity to extend thanks for the wonderful reception that the people of Ocean Beach have extended to us. It is our plan to give the people the best in entertainment, and to co-operate in any way for the betterment of the community.

The double feature programs were put in as an experiment to get the reaction of the people. Since both types of programs are favored, it will be the policy of the theatre to present single features on the week-end programs and double features in the middle of the week.

We will appreciate any suggestions from our patrons for the improvement of your theatre.

Ocean Beach Child Killed In Accident

To Sgt. Wallace D. Martin, 29, Marine, came a tragic end to a Labor Day outing when an auto collision killed his 4-year-old daughter, Gloria Alice, broke the leg of his wife, Mrs. Alice Martin, 26, and seriously injured himself and his 5-year-old daughter, Ramona.

The Martins, who live at 4839 Del Monte avenue, were returning from Point Loma when their auto collided with a machine driven by Don Hardin, 22, of 2502 K-st, police reported.

Two passengers in Hardin's auto, Lyle Bommitt, 21, of National City, and Stanley Giles, 22, of 2948 Main-st, were taken to Mercy hospital with possible injuries.

We Should Not Stop Advance

Small Business Man and Many Others Doing Better Than in Past Fifteen Years.

For the best good news of the week, all honors go to the report of Dun & Bradstreet's showing that fewer American businesses failed last July than in any month since the post-war boom days of 1920.

This is a clear picture of budding prosperity, as plain as the difference between red and black ink, between despair and jubilation.

The best part is that this Dun & Bradstreet report, taking in even the smallest factory or corner store, reflects jubilation where we most like to see it—in the ranks of the "little fellows" of business. Today fewer are collapsing than at any time in sixteen years.

Such a fact as this is comforting to know these days. It immunizes one against the pessimistic school of thought holding that opportunity, in America, is gone, and that the day of the prosperous small enterprise is through. That theory is fallacious.

All the facts are on the bright side. In the retail field, for example, in California, individual stores are increasing more rapidly than chain stores, and are doing fully seventy-five per cent of a retail trade that is mounting by leaps and bounds. Dun & Bradstreet's research department says more businesses were failing in July, 1900, than in July, 1936. All this is good news for business.

There has been altogether too much gloom spread about of late. Since the facts justify optimism, why not look at the bright side of things once in a while?

In the numerous reports of business progress is the statement of the Norge Home Appliance Corporation which say their six months business ending June 30, 1936, broke all records of the company's history and total sales assumed "amazing proportions."

Right here at home in San Diego conditions have gradually advanced and are world's better. Harold W. B. Baker, superintendent of placement of school pupils last week said: "Employment conditions were better last month than at any other time in the fifteen years I have been in employment work in San Diego."

ALL THESE FACTORS WE BELIEVE ARE SUFFICIENT REASONS WHY WE SHOULD "RE-ELECT ROOSEVELT."

Elementary School Information

Ocean Beach school will begin regular school work Monday, September 14 after a short assembly in the court of the school at 9 a.m. Old pupils are to report to classes and teachers assigned them the last day of school. Pupils will be dismissed at 12:40 Monday. Kindergartners will leave at 12.

New pupils who have a transfer or a report card from the school last attended are to go to class rooms according to the bulletins posted in the hall of the main building.

New students who have neither a transfer or a report card from the school last attended will please report to the office. We will be happy to have parents remain until enrollment cards have been made out. Enrollments will begin at 8 a.m.

Commencing this September, 1936 the San Diego city schools are accepting children for the beginning classes of kindergarten and first grade only once a year in September instead of twice a year in September and February as heretofore.

Children will be accepted in kindergarten provided they have reached the age of at least four years and six months by the opening date of school, and in first grade if they have reached the age of five years and six months.

Under the provision of our state law all children entering school for the first time in either kindergarten or first grade must be enrolled before the end of the first month of school—otherwise they cannot be enrolled until the following year.

Inasmuch as the above minimum legal ages of entrance are prescribed by law it is not possible for the local school system to make any deviation whatever from these regulations. Consequently it is hoped that no parents will make any requests for special consideration of children not old enough to meet the legal requirements outlined above.

NATIVE OF ARMENIA BRINGS GOOD WILL MESSAGE

President Frank R. Felt of Ocean Beach Kiwanis presided at Wednesday's luncheon meeting with the guest speaker Thomas H. Kullujian, a native of Trebizond, Armenia, but a naturalized American for more than twenty years.

Mr. Kullujian gave a most interesting talk on the plight of his native country and expressed his gratitude for the untold assistance that the United States had been to it in helping to remain independent. He also gave some high lights on the life of Abdul-Hamid, Sultan of Turkey, and how that ruler was wise enough to play the prestige of one power against the other when danger threatened.

Travels of the "wishing rug," or as some countries call it, the "victory" or "peace treaty" rug was decidedly of interest to those present and the club felt honored when the distinguished gentleman had closed his remarks.

Social-Civic Forum Opening Sept. 15

"Political Issues Which America Faces in 1936" is the general subject to be discussed informally by the Ocean Beach Social-Civic Forum, Tuesday evening, September 15th at 7:30 p.m.

The forum is held in the auditorium of the Ocean Beach elementary school, and will be held regularly every Tuesday evening during the school semester.

Bullitt Is Made Ambassador to France—Hitler Stirs Stalin to Talk of War—Secretary Dern Dies in Washington.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© Western Newspaper Union.

TRANSFER of William C. Bullitt from the embassy in Moscow to that in Paris is not surprising. He it was who was chiefly responsible for the recognition of the Soviet government by the United States, and when he was rewarded with the ambassadorship it was expected he would be able to swing a lot of Russian business to American concerns. Also it was hoped he could persuade his Russian friends to keep their promises not to disturb this country with communist propaganda. In these respects at least Mr. Bullitt has been a disappointment. But he retains the confidence of President Roosevelt and will not be out of place as ambassador to the leftist French government.

W. C. Bullitt.

Some observers think Mr. Bullitt is sent to Paris for the purpose of secretly sounding out the major European powers on the possibility of reconvening the world economic conference in 1937.

Jesse Isador Straus resigned as ambassador to France on the advice of his physicians. The President wrote him that "if this administration shall be continued for another four years, I shall count on your returning as a part of it."

REICHSFUEHRER HITLER has injected a little more ginger into the international armament race by suddenly announcing that the term for compulsory military service for Germans was doubled—two years instead of one. As matters are just now in Europe, this appeared to be aimed directly against soviet Russia, and if the London newspapers are to be believed, Dictator Stalin recognizes this and reacts as might be expected. The London Evening News and Daily Mail both assert that Stalin, in a secret radio address to the red army, said:

"Comrades of the red forces: We are on the very eve of momentous events. At any moment now you may be called upon to lay down your lives for the defense of the proletarian birthland.

"This is the moment you have been anticipating, and now your birthland is expecting you to do the duty you have so eagerly awaited.

"Our enemies are getting into position. So be ready. The enemies are on the frontiers of our great land. Keep watch.

"Everything money could buy, everything the genius of man could invent and everything the loving labor of the workers could make have been given into your hands for the defense and glory of the Soviet land."

The London papers say other Soviet leaders followed Stalin with similar talks. The foreign office in Moscow flatly denied that the dictator had delivered any such address as was reported.

German economists, worried over the mounting costs of re-arming their country, were told the doubling of the term of military service would not be quite so expensive as it appeared, for more men in barracks means fewer on dole. However, the national debt continued to grow and ways of meeting payments are becoming fewer and more scanty.

SECRETARY OF WAR GEORGE H. DERN died in Walter Reed hospital, Washington, of heart disease and other complications resulting from influenza. He had been ill since last spring but part of the time had insisted on attending to his official duties, keeping this up even from his sick bed. Mr. Dern, who was sixty-four years old, was formerly a brilliant mining engineer and was the second non-Mormon to be elected governor of Utah, serving two terms.

ANNOUNCEMENT was made by WPA officials in Washington that more than 110,000 farmers are now at work on Works Progress administration projects in the drouth areas of the West and Central West.

About half of the farmers on the WPA rolls are in North and South Dakota. North Dakota reported 32,762 at work on federal projects and South Dakota 22,927. Relief and agricultural authorities have estimated that 110,000 to 120,000 farmers will need help through the winter in the Dakotas.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S special train made a quick run to Bismarck, N. D., and the special committee on the drouth, headed by Morris L. Cooke, reported to him on its inspection of the afflicted area. The President then took an automobile tour through the countryside to see for himself some of the effects of the long dry spell. He conferred with Acting Governor Welford and Senators Nye and Frazier of North Dakota and Acting Governor Holt and Senators Wheeler and Murray of Montana. Next day Mr. Roosevelt's train carried him down to Pierre, S. D., and thence into other drouth stricken states.

Mr. Roosevelt's original schedule was changed to permit him to make a quick run to Salt Lake City for the burial services of Secretary of War Dern.

JOHN L. LEWIS' Committee for Industrial Organization in one of its initial efforts to organize the steel workers seems to have succeeded only in leading one big plant to go out of business, throwing 750 men out of employment. Such is the result of a strike in the plant of the Standard Steel Spring company at Coraopolis, Pa., the strike being directed by the CIO. The employees who didn't strike later refused to work because, they said, their families had been threatened by phone with bombing if the men returned to the plant. So the company closed down and began removing the machinery. It was alleged the strikers were assured in advance that they would be given relief money if the plant were closed, and that the state authorities did nothing to protect the plant or the non-strikers from violence.

FEDERAL JUDGE JOHN P. BARNES of Chicago upheld the constitutionality of the Commodity Exchange act and denied an injunction to restrain its enforcement asked by members of the Chicago Mercantile exchange. Judge Barnes agreed with the contention of Special Assistant Attorney General Wendell Berge that the act is "merely an extension of the provisions of the grain futures act," which has been held constitutional by the United States Supreme Court.

FIGURES given out by the Department of Commerce revealed that July merchandise exports from the United States declined to $178,324,000, the lowest level of the year, while imports increased to $193,409,000, leaving an unfavorable balance of trade of $15,085,000 for the month. It was the second successive month an unfavorable balance was reported. However, compared with the 1935 month, exports were up 3 per cent and imports up 9 per cent.

Sec. Roper.

The unfavorable balance was regarded by Secretary of Commerce Roper as convincing proof of economic recovery in the United States because nearly half the increase in imports over last year in dollar volume was accounted for by luxury items such as furs and whisky and commodities not extensively produced in this country, such as wood-pulp, paper, nickel and tin.

The increase in exports over July, 1935, consisted chiefly of finished and semi-manufactured articles, including machinery, electrical apparatus, aircraft, iron and steel manufactures and inedible vegetable products.

AFTER more than five weeks of desperate fighting, neither the Spanish loyalists nor the rebels were able to claim a decided advantage, and it became evident that the conflict would be long drawn out if the other European nations could keep aloof. This latter eventuality was made more probable by Adolf Hitler's announcement that the German government had ordered an embargo on arms to Spain. He thus lined his country up with Great Britain and France, and Italy had accepted the French proposal for neutrality, though with some reservations.

These "neutral" nations, however, do not intend to be imposed upon and both the British and the German governments made strong protests to the Madrid government against alleged violation of the freedom of the seas. Five British warships set sail from Gibraltar and Hitler sent seven from the Baltic to enforce the demands that interference with shipping cease. The crews of these vessels were ready for immediate action.

The United States does not consider the attempted blockade of rebel-held ports any more valid than do the European nations. Secretary Hull told the Madrid foreign office: "My government directs me to inform you that, with the friendliest feelings toward the Spanish government, it cannot admit the legality of any action on the part of the Spanish government in declaring such ports closed unless that government declares and maintains an effective blockade of such ports."

FOLLOWING the confessions and execution of the Russian conspirators against Stalin and the Soviet government, the Norwegian authorities decided that Leon Trotzky, alleged author of the plot, had violated the conditions of his asylum in Norway. They gave him the choice of immediate arrest or signing a promise to refrain from all revolutionary activities, and he chose the latter.

DURING the fall maneuvers France has been testing the strength of its new fortifications along the German frontier — the Maginot line. In the Montmedy region the elaborate system of concrete strongholds was subjected to an "enemy" attack, and observers said the assailing troops, armed with the newest and speediest equipment, were able to penetrate the line only at a few places and in small numbers. Reservists from the interior of France had moved up to occupy the line in thirty-six hours. Watching the "battle" was a delegation of generals from Soviet Russia.

FLOYD B. OLSON, Farmer-Laborite governor of Minnesota and candidate for the United States senatorship, died of stomach cancer after a courageous fight. He had been ill for months but had kept up his executive and campaign activities as best he could until the end. Hjalmar Peterson, lieutenant governor, succeeds him as governor, but at this writing there is doubt as to whom the party's state central committee will select to make the race for the senatorship. Francis H. Shoemaker of Duluth announced his candidacy immediately, and two other men were being considered—Senator Elmer A. Benson, now a candidate for governor, and Representative Ernest Lundeen of Minneapolis.

F. B. Olson

TOM BLANTON of Abilene, Tex., veteran ranter in congress, has lost his seat in that body and says he will return to the practice of law. For twenty years, with one brief interlude, he has represented his district in the house but in the run-off Democratic primary, which is equivalent to an election there, he was beaten by Clyde L. Garrett of Eastland, a county judge.

JOSEPH W. HARRIMAN, former president of the Harriman National Bank and Trust company of New York and a powerful figure in national finance, was released on parole from the federal northeastern penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa. He hastened to New York where, it was believed, he would seek a position teaching business subjects. Harriman was sent to prison in 1934 for four and a half years after his conviction on charges of banking irregularities involving more than a million dollars.

SENATOR JAMES COUZENS of Michigan, a Republican long noted for his independence of party restrictions and a candidate for renomination on the Republican ticket, has announced that he will support President Roosevelt for re-election. His statement was:

Bainbridge Colby

"Believing as I do that the most important matter confronting the nation is the re-election of President Roosevelt, I intend to support him.

"The outcome of my own candidacy for the senate is neither important to the nation nor to me, but I believe it is important that my many loyal supporters in Michigan be advised in advance of the primary on September 15.

"The reasons for this conclusion will be advanced from time to time between now and election next November."

On the other hand, Bainbridge Colby of New York, who was secretary of state in President Wilson's cabinet, announced that he is for Landon, declaring in a published statement:

"Governor Landon's candidacy carries the hopes of every American who knows what America stands for, and who respects the principles which have brought us to greatness as a nation, and preserved our liberties as self-governed people.

"The thoughtful and independent Democrats throughout the country—and their number is formidable—are determined in this election to rebuke the betrayal of their party by the administration in Washington."

GREAT BRITAIN and Egypt have settled their disputes and signed a treaty of friendship and alliance. It brings Egypt much nearer to its goal of independence while at the same time it provides full safety for England's interests, especially the Suez canal. The British troops probably will be withdrawn from Cairo and other cities and concentrated with the air force within the canal zone around Ismailia. The maximum strength is to be 10,000 in the army and 3,400 in the air force, but in an emergency Britain will be allowed to send necessary reinforcements.

The British high commissioner to Cairo and the Egyptian minister to London will be raised to the status of ambassadors.

HELGOLAND

Fishermen of Helgoland.

Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

"HELGOLAND is falling down" may be sung sadly to the tune of "London Bridge" if there is truth in reports that Germany is fortifying this pinhead stronghold in the North sea. Firing great guns menaces the island more than any enemy, for at every big shot sections of its vertical sandstone sides plunk into the surrounding sea.

Like a triangular block of raspberry ice on a vast blue-green platter, Helgoland is melting away into the North sea. The island is literally crumbling away around its population of 2,500 — mainly pilots, fisherfolk, or boarding-house-keepers. Here the Helgolanders try to hold together their island, their flourishing summer resort business, and their traditions on a small bare rock upon which would fit the Federal Triangle buildings along Pennsylvania avenue in Washington, without too much margin.

This sea-bitten morsel is the remotest of the Frisian islands, which water has gouged out from the northern coastline of Europe, and, within historic times, scrubbed down until reduced in size, or in some cases washed away altogether.

Broad submarine rocky ledges in the shoal area around Helgoland are submerged souvenirs of its former extent, estimated to be five times its present size, which is about one-fifth of a square mile. The island lost ground to the extent of about 250 square yards a year until 1892. Then the wave-worn western side was ringed around with a girdle of granite brought from the Danish island of Bornholm. Even thus protected, it is doomed within eight centuries, say the pessimists. More generous geologists give it about forty to go, but go they all agree it will.

After ages of erosion, what remains of Helgoland? A slice-of-pie-shaped wedge of red sandstone streaked with layers of chalk, swept by chill salt winds and incessantly gnawed by the North sea. Its dimensions are notable for their smallness, except the height; the sides rise sheer and dripping from the water to a flat top of 200 feet above sea level. Its importance lies in its position; as Germany's "Eye of the Empire", it watches over the equidistant mouths of the Weser, Jade, Elbe, and Eider rivers, commanding the harbors of Hamburg, Bremen, and Cuxhaven from a vantage point 28 miles from the nearest point of mainland.

Shattered by the World War.

Yet Helgoland, with history practically in its hands, had been reported by astute observers as reluctant to make history and more concerned about making a living. Its experience during the World war proved that history is easy to make but hard to survive. Its scant pasture land was confiscated to build forts. Its rocky cliffs, of which there was already precious little, crumbled off and plunged seaward during artillery fire. The entire population was forced into four years of exile to make room for the military in 1914. When the living remnants returned in 1918, their peace was shattered by three years of blasting down fortifications in accordance with the Versailles treaty, and the further trimming down of the island's slim sides. In 1922 and in desperation, Helgoland petitioned the League of Nations for neutrality. Scheduled for a perpetual bout with the sea, it finds any other country's fight just one too many.

Green, Red and White

Within its diminishing boundaries, it has three parts: the massive rock table of Oberland with its cornered tuft of town, the shoreline shelf projecting below like cap's visor with a second edition of town called Unterland, and the wisp of sandy Dune in tow a mile to the east. A thin green felt of pasturage across the island's top completes the color triad which inspired the flag: "Green the land, red the rock, white the sand:

These colors make the flag of Helgoland."

Like a toy village on the corner of a table, at Oberland's southeast point huddle blocklike houses, square and solid against the recurrent 80-mile gales. The flat skyline is broken by nothing more wind-catching than the pretentious little German postoffice of glazed brick and the spire added during Queen Victoria's reign to the Church of St. Nicholas, already centuries old. Around the cliff's edge stands a row of boarding houses and hotels, offering to resorters the first sniff of salt breeze before it reaches natives on back streets. Through the town runs Kartoffalallee, or Potato Lane, bisecting the island through garden patches of potatoes and cabbage, through pasture spots where graze a few sheep and goats, past the red and white cone of the lighthouse, to the little cafe on the northern point where the "Fog Cow" bellows warning every two minutes when the mists swirl low.

The lower town, lacking horses and vehicles of any sort, is not without its own method of rapid transit — namely, sliding down banisters. Men of Helgoland have been known to scorn the elevator operating between the clifftop and the "down-town" level of the two-story town; they mount the iron hand railing of the stairway along the cliff's face and nonchalantly skid down to the foot of the precipice. Here in the shelter of the cliff, houses and shops cluster about a knot of six-foot-wide concrete streets.

Sun tan is the money crop of Helgoland. This is raised chiefly at the expense of summer visitors basking on the frail half-moon of barren beach of the Dune or Sand island, apparently melting into the North sea a mile southeast of the main rock. Here has been located a tiny graveyard for nameless bodies washed up by the waves. Amputated by a seaquake in 1720, the Dune was previously joined to its rocky home base by the tall White Cliff of fine quality chalk, now visible as a reef at low tide. Chalk export, which occasionally attracted as many as a hundred ships to Helgoland's harbor at one time, grew so great that it killed the chalk that laid the golden egg; the White Cliff caved in during a storm and tumbled into the sea.

Its People Are Frisians.

Inhabited by Frisians, a rugged race whom the Romans were proud to call allies, Helgoland remained independent of Europe's great kingdoms for centuries, resisting invasions even of Christianity. In fact, its lasting consecration to old Norse god, especially Forseti, god of justice, may mean that its name developed from Helige-Land, of Holy Land. Natives, however, call their island simply det Lunn, The Land. Although German is the official language, they speak a dialect of Frisian, which resembles ancient Anglo-Saxon.

During the Middle Ages it was theoretically controlled from the duchy of Schleswig, the duke even pawning it to a Hamburg merchant, but actually it was the irrespressible stronghold of those medieval maritime racketeers — pirates, brigands, and beachcombers. The Danes once got possession by threatening to hang all the men, whom they had kidnaped while out fishing, so that the women overthrew the small Schleswig garrison and proclaimed Danish allegiance. Thereafter, when improved water transportation gave it greater convenience, it has been constantly in demand and in use as a stepping stone for larger countries.

It was a valuable smuggling headquarters during the blockades of the Napoleonic wars. Then England sent seven ships to capture it, in September, 1807, like "plucking an apple hanging over a neighbor's wall"; Denmark finally relinquished claims to it after seven years.

Helgoland was traded in 1890 to Germany for Zanzibar, 3,000 times as large, and the exchange was compared to an entire suit of clothes swapped for a trouser button. But the trouser button demonstrated that it could serve a purpose of vital importance when it became one of the world's strongest fortresses during the World war. Not far away, on a misty morning in August, 1914, occurred the first serious naval clash of the war, when British victory littered the glassy smooth sea with wreckage.

Helgolanders acquired the habit of considering themselves fishermen at the start of the Fifteenth century, when a strange migration of herring brought them great harvests of fish for 200 years. An equally strange emigration of their source of income left them catching only a few lobsters.

Since the island's popularity as a summer resort began in 1828 with only a hundred resorters, the Helgolanders derive their year's income from renting themselves out as pilots and their homes as boarding houses for the season of two weeks.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as nature intended—fail to remove impurities that poison the system when retained.

Then you may suffer nagging backache, dizziness, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, puffiness under the eyes; feel nervous, miserable—all upset.

Don't delay? Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are especially for poorly functioning kidneys. They are recommended by grateful users the country over. Get them from any druggist.

Drouth-Stricken Farmers Get Government Aid

Their crops seared and withered and their farms reduced to dusty stretches of sun-baked soil, these North Dakota farmers are forced to turn to work projects as their only means of avoiding starvation for themselves and families. They are being put to work on water conservation and irrigation projects to reclaim their once fertile land from the grip of drouth and barrenness.

THE DAILY ROUND

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WHO treads a daily round may deem
The daily round a grind,
For so the task will always seem,
The task however kind,
Until it is a faded dream
Of something left behind.

This morning we our way shall wend
To some familiar door,
Shall walk a street, and meet a friend,
And find a place of yore:
But some day all of that shall end,
And end forevermore.

Yet I have known of mortals who
Had found, yet never found,
The ease they dreamed, as I and you
Dream now of limbs unbound—
Who longed for something they could do,
Again the daily round.

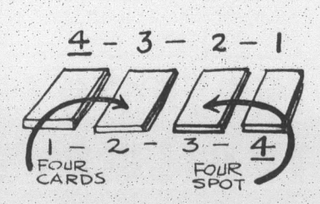
You will choose four



MYSTERIOUS PREDICTION

ON a sheet of paper you write the words: "You will choose four." Place the paper on the table, folded so that no one can see what you have written.

Next lay four stacks of cards in a row. Ask a person to choose any stack. When he has done so, have him open the paper; then you prove that the stack he chose was "four."

Any heap may be chosen. If the person takes the stack at your right, you count the stacks yourself: "one, two, three, four—" ending on his heap. If he takes the stack at your left, you ask him to count the piles himself. He counts from his left; and his chosen stack is number four.

One of the middle stacks has four cards; if the person chose it, tell him to count the cards and he finds that he has four. The other middle stack has only one card; that card, however, is a four spot, face down. If it is chosen, have the person turn up the card and he sees the four.

Flair for Hand-Quilted Fashions

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

UP TO comparatively a short time ago handquilting was regarded as a form of needlework to be utilized and reserved for luxurious intimate apparel, robes, bedjackets, negligees and such. The thought no longer holds good. The emergence of hand-quilting from boudoir environs becomes a high-style event—the dawn of a new era for this exquisite needle work.

That faithful perennial back-to-college clothes problem is with us again. By way of a new and interesting approach to the subject suppose we talk about the perfectly fascinating hand-quilted sports coats and evening jackets such as are now pridefully showing in shops that make boast of being ever "first" in fashion.

Tuck away one or more of these cunning and chic hand-quilted garments in your back-to-school wardrobe. Wear 'em on the campus and to parties and proms and you will excite the admiration and envy of the whole college. If you think this is an exaggerated way of putting it, please take one long look at the hand-quilted fashions here pictured. The argument is closed, n'est-ce pas?

Hand-quilting really dates back to early history, some of the oldest pieces originating in China and India. In the general art revival of the Renaissance period Trapunto quilting came into existence, the same accomplished by quilting the design in double lines, raising the space between into a bas relief effect by drawing through wisps of soft wool to form a padding.

Women especially in north of England and in northern Italy created unusually artistic and original pieces of hand-quilting. Via the English route the art of quilting was brought over by the English settlers whose descendants, farmers' wives, living in the mountains of Kentucky carry on the work today.

Visioning the possibilities in this attractive handiwork, current style creators have put experts in voguish costume design at the service of native workers and thus is added to hand-quilted garments now showing in the shops.

The new sport coats and evening jackets now featuring in the fashion picture are made mostly of hand-blocked linens, cottons, smart satins, sheer woolens and dainty challis. There are flowery prints, geometrical designs, checks and plaids as well as plain colors in flattering combinations.

The stunning swagger coat in the picture is made of hand-blocked challis in brilliant plaid. It is lined with plain linen. Just the thing for campus wear or to stroll about town on an early coolish autumn day.

The good-looking model to the right at the top makes an ideal knockabout country club coat. The original was done in brown lines. The pronounced vogue for satin this fall bespeaks the appeal of a hand-quilted coat thereof fashioned in like manner.

The sports cardigan "set" shown in foreground is of bright monotone fabric lined with a gay print, the complementary waistcoat being of match-color pique with silver coin buttons to add to its lure. The evening jacket (in panel) is in a Trapunto design on silk-finished linen with contrasting lining. This model comes in exquisite Chinese colorings. A perfect accessory to complete an autumn campus frock is shown to left above. This roundabout jacket is reversible and has contrasting lacing.

BEDTIME STORY

by Thornton W. Burgess

FARMER BROWN'S BOY LOSES HIS TEMPER

IT WAS a long time since Farmer Brown's Boy had visited the Laughing Brook and the Smiling Pool, so of course he knew nothing about what had been going on there. One morning, having nothing else to do, he took it into his head to go over to the Smiling Pool to see how Jerry Muskrat was getting along. Jerry saw him coming and his heart was so filled with distrust because of what he had suffered from the trapper who had so nearly caught him that he actually suspected Farmer Brown's Boy.

"I Guess You Are Pretty Nearly Ready for Cold Weather," Said He.

"I used to think that I could trust Farmer Brown's Boy," muttered Jerry, "but I don't trust him. I don't trust anybody. As likely as not Farmer Brown's Boy has been friendly just so that he can take advantage of it." So Jerry promptly hid where Farmer Brown's Boy could not see him, but where he could watch Farmer Brown's Boy.

The latter was whistling, a habit he has when he is feeling happy. He came straight down to the bank of the Smiling Pool and there he stood for a few minutes looking at Jerry's house. "I guess you are pretty nearly ready for cold weather," said he, just as if he were talking to Jerry. "I've brought a couple of carrots for you and I hope you will enjoy them. You'll find them over by that favorite old log of yours."

Farmer Brown's Boy pulled a couple of carrots from his pocket and walked over to the old log which lay half in the water and half out. It was the very log where Jerry had been caught in the trap by his tail. When Farmer Brown's Boy got there he gave a little whistle of surprise. There were some pieces of carrot already there. Then Farmer Brown's Boy's face clouded. "I wonder what this means," said he, and at once began to look about. It didn't take him long to discover the trap fastened to the old log. "Ha!" I thought so!" exclaimed Farmer Brown's Boy, and his face became angry looking.

He reached down and got hold of the chain of the trap and pulled it free from the log. Then he tossed it up on the bank and at once went over to another favorite feeding place of Jerry's. There, just as he expected, he found another trap. This he also threw up on the bank, and his face looked angrier than ever.

Now Farmer Brown's Boy knew all about trapping, and, what is more, he knew all about the ways of Jerry Muskrat. So he went from place to place where he thought traps might be set. He found two more, and by this time he had quite lost his temper.

"I'd like to know who it is has dared to set traps here," he grumbled. "This is on our land, and everybody knows that we don't allow trapping. I guess I'll have to go up the Laughing Brook and see if there are more traps up there. I'll take these traps along with me, and whoever owns them will have to come up to the house to get them. Then I'll give him such a good piece of my mind that he won't do any more trapping along the Laughing Brook and around the Smiling Pool."

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

GOOD AND ECONOMICAL

A BEEF loaf is an economical main dish to serve occasionally, and it may be as tasty as it is satisfying. It is without waste, and when sliced may be served as cold meat for the second day. The following is slightly different, but recommended as very good:

Beef Loaf.

Simmer one and one-half pounds of round of beef in a quart of boiling water, teaspoonful of salt and a tablespoonful of vinegar. When tender chop very fine. Add to the broth, which should be at least a cupful, a teaspoonful of sugar, the same of sage and thyme. Add one tablespoonful of worcestershire sauce and more salt and pepper. Mix with the meat and press in a buttered mold. Serve when well chilled with sliced tomato on lettuce with mayonnaise.

Stuffed Flank Steak.

Have a flank steak trimmed and scored. Mix one cupful of bread crumbs, one small onion chopped, one-half of a grated carrot, one-half cupful of chopped celery, one tablespoonful of minced parsley, one teaspoonful of sugar and salt and pepper to taste. Add one-third cupful of hot water or vegetable liquor to moisten. Spread this mixture over the steak, roll up tightly and tie firmly. Sprinkle with seasoned flour and brown in a little hot fat. Place in a covered baking pan and bake one and one-half hours, basting with butter and vegetable liquor three or four times during the baking. Serve with pan gravy.

Macedoine Salad.

Take two cupfuls of cooked rice, one cupful of peas, three tablespoonfuls each of minced celery and grated cheese, four tablespoonfuls each of pimiento and relish, one teaspoonful of salt. Mix well and serve on lettuce with french or mayonnaise dressing.

When fresh coconuts are in the market, keep some freshly grated coconut well sugared in the ice chest. Use it on salads, on custards as topping for cream pie and custard pie and as cake filling. It is so much tastier than the canned or package variety, which we welcome when the fresh nut is out of the market.

TAILORED SILK

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Emphasis is on the tailored theme for pajama costumes. The pajamas pictured is typical. This two-piece is tailored of gray silk shantung with glove stitching to give it fine finesse. This model is not only good to wear at a resort or at countryside, one may even drop in to see a friend and wear this conservatively styled pajama costume with perfect propriety.

LOOKING AHEAD TO COATS FOR WINTER

Those who prefer to ignore the heat by focusing their thoughts on the winter and fur coats will find sufficient different styles in the shops to keep them guessing for hours as to which is the most important. If they're wise they'll choose the most becoming silhouette and forget about the others.

Outstanding in fur fashions is the flared silhouette, the width of hemline contrasted with the slenderness of the waistline. A coat of this type is obviously dressy, so the busy woman may prefer to pass it by in favor of a straightline "topcoat" model which proves serviceable from morning until night.

Fall Hosiery to Glisten in Bright Copper Tones

A penny—or rather a copper—for your thoughts if you're thinking of colors that are good in hosiery at the moment. The copper tones are important—shades that glisten with the bright bronze of a new penny, or of your burnished copper teakettle. The copper casts will continue into the fall, the fashion makers tell us, because they consort so well with the new autumn colors in fabrics and shoes. New taupes and grays are also coming into the picture.

Wine Tones Are Popular in Fashions for Autumn

The prominence of wine tones, grapes and vintage greens in the first fall fashions springs from the Exposition Vinecole at the Tuileries in Paris.

American women have already caught this Bacchanalian note in fashion. Evidences of its presence are seen in clusters of grapes worn in the hair for evening, wine colors in the first fall hats and leaf motifs in trimming.

Plaid Top-Coat

The back swing is important in this plaid top-coat of fleece-like woolen in reddish brown and blue. The dress of spongy brown woolen has a brilliant red suede belt to match rows of fine stitching trimming the collar.

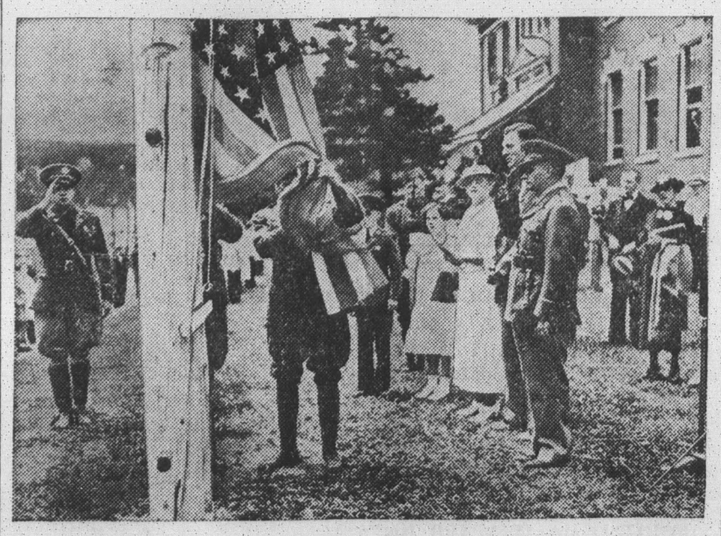
Uncle Sam Gets More Territory



"No Man's Land," an area 30 by 70 miles, located in the Colorado Rockies, was found to have been omitted from all United States treaties covering the acquisition of territory and therefore was formally claimed and annexed at a ceremony which took place at Breckenridge, Colo. After Gov. Ed C. Johnson had formally claimed the land for the United States, National Guardsmen unfurled the American flag, as seen in the illustration.

TWO GENTLEMEN MEET

By tthe very nature of it, that meeting of Landon and Roosevelt at Des Moines last week was packed with drama.

Watching them, the nation was on edge wondering what, if anything, would happen.

The sportsmanlike way it came off, the smiles and good will each candidate had for the other, augurs well for the campaign. It should be "cleaner", now, than had been expected.

No one, of course, can prevent calumny from playing some part in the campaign. There is always that. Abraham Lincoln, when a candidate, was libelled by all manner of malicious whisperings started by unscrupulous pigmies. Thomas Jefferson, too, and Teddy Roosevelt, when running for office, were maligned by conscienceless political enemies.

LYNCHING AND THE LAW

Lynch law, many persons fear, may ultimately write "finis" to the grim drama of killing and man hunt in the Siskiyou mountain country. Yreka is understandably outraged at the slaying of two officers and a civilian by the Brite brothers. And the spirit of vengeance has flamed into mob violence there on previous occasions.

But in fairness to the citizens of Siskiyou county, let us not lose sight of the fact that most of them are as ardently opposed to lynch law as anyone in California. And let's not forget the way their patience has been strained in recent years.

Four of their peace officers have been killed. And behind the lynching of Clyde Johnson for slaying of police chief Daw a year ago, was a long story of the law's delay. A man convicted of murdering a highway patrolman at Yreka in 1933 was still alive at the time, two years later, through a series of seven reprieves.

Surely we want no more lynchings in California. But the best way to insure ourselves forever against them is to speed the law, so that even the most hot-headed will realize that he can count on the certainty of legal justice.

TRUTH ABOUT TELEVISION

We've been hearing about television, reading about television, and discussing the magic of television, but as yet we have seen no television. There have been vague rumors of big combines tying up patents. There have been various rumors as to the cause of delay. Some skeptics of the "I'm from Missouri" school declare that the whole thing is a pipe dream, and that there never will be television of a practical sort.

As usual, all the rumors are wrong. Technical perfection of the process has been a slow and difficult job, but now it is virtually complete. Broadcasting that brings what's going on to our eyes as well as our ears will begin in the United States as soon as the Federal Communications Commission assigns definite air channels on which television stations may operate. They've already held hearings, and the decision is expected any day now.

Another rumor, that the cost of television is prohibitive, also seems to be pure fiction. A broadcasting station now nearing completion in the east is costing considerably less than $100,000. And receiving sets, good sets that really work satisfactorily, are being built already in some quantity to sell for $250 or less. You'll remember that the first good radio sets cost almost that much.

LETTER CARRIERS MEET

State conventions are interesting gatherings, politically or otherwise; but the coming event in which everyone should express interest is the California State association of Letter Carriers, convening next Saturday at Bakersfield. We are all friends of the "mail man," or at least we should, because he never fails to put in appearaance. He don't always bring good news, but he can smile a smile that never wears off, whether the news is good or bad. With his faithfulness and burden of mail, rain or shine, in trouble or joy, he is always "there with the goods."

I am grateful and proud o 'my postman;
He's the fellow who never will fail,
But I think he should plan to charter a van
By the size of the pack o 'his mail.

I've been wondering if changing the mail box
From door to a place by the gate,
Would'nt save in his walks a few blocks
For my postman who is never late!

With the "return of prosperity" there is a great call for new residences, homes for the masses, especially in California. This is a good indication, and has much encouragement for the future. From a national standpoint, it has been estimated that a total of 1,320,000 new homes should be erected in the United States each year until 1945 to meet the present housing shortage. Let the good work go on! The Chambers of Commerce in this state are devout workers for civic and home improvement; especially do they use great effort in making California a better place in which to live and to earn a living. Their work is already showing its influence, which is most ideal in all the major projects. Their work merits support from everyone.

Labor strikes and violence seem to continue with noticeable increase in few industrial circles; meanwhile various kinds of building materials are not available to keep up with the demand. The production of steel is the highest in seven years. Even the output of lumber is getting up into the steel class and is now 72 per cent of the 1929 basis. These might be taken as favorable omens, but strikes are always bad, especially at the time of having just celebrated Labor Day! Workers and employers are lined up fighting each other, and even the labor leaders seem to refuse to "pour oil on the troubled waters."

LONGING

With a resounding roar,
A mournful cry,
Moans of sorrow,
Quivers of fear,—
The sea, the earth,
Under a pall of fog,
A dim silvery moon,
And not a star.

I sit and listen,
And think, and fear
As the very earth trembles
With it's battles so old;
Nature against nature,
Striving to win.

The sands of the shore,
The rocks, the cliffs,
Resisting the blows
Of an angry sea.
A call of madness—
A jeering shout,
A baffled whimper,
A retreating rush—
An uncanny stillness
Over all.

Oh, but for strength
For the battles of life—
Strength of the sea,—
Or rocks of the shore;
Resistance and will-power,—
Love—
And faith.

This turmoil of life,
Seemingly endless—
Wearing,
Undermining,—
When will it cease.

I am tired,
I am weary;
I long for that love,—
That quiet,
Peaceful,
Heavenly soothing,
Love,—
Such as you
Alone can give.

To be in your arms,
At rest—
Dear Heart.

A Boon to Housewives is . . . CANNED BEER

A NEW economy and convenience for the housewives of this country is fast coming into general use. This new aid to the housewife is a tin beer can containing a coating similar in function to the coating of a brewer's keg. Its economy and convenience lie in the facts that it obviates the necessity of paying deposits on beer bottles and returning them, and that, although the can holds as much as a beer bottle it occupies only half as much space in the refrigerator, and can be stacked. Hard to open? Not at all. There is also a new can opener for liquids which you can get with the beer. This cuts a triangular hole in the top of the can with only a very slight pressure, and there you are! Prosit!

Another Reason

But there is another reason for the popularity of this new method of selling beer in keglined cans. That reason, according to the brewers who have adopted this container, is that the beer tastes better than beer in bottles. And the reason for that, they say, is that it has to be subjected to a shorter period of pasteurization than beer in bottles, and also because keglined cans, being opaque, protect the beer from light which is harmful to beer flavor.

At any rate the president of the brewery which first introduced this canned beer to the public has received personal calls from nearly a hundred presidents of other brewing concerns, and a number of the most important of these have contracted for a supply of these keglined cans. The manufacturers have also received inquiries about it from many places beyond the seas—from Berlin (which is significant because Germany is the home of the best beer) from London, Paris, Dublin, Hong Kong, Amsterdam and many other places in Europe and in Central and South America.

After Years of Effort

This new beer can is not an ordinary can like that in which you purchase peas and tomatoes. It presented entirely different manufacturing problems, and it was only after years of laboratory research that they were all successfully solved. The company which developed it has specialized in can coating for three decades, and the formula for the coating which has to perform the same functions as the coating of a brewer's keg took a long time to find.

Canned beer will soon be available almost everywhere, and it is being used largely in the home. So it's up to you to polish up your memory of all the good foods that go well with this mild beverage. Just as a starter, here's a partial alphabetical list of canned foods all ready to serve with it:

Anchovies, beef a la mode, cheese, chicken—whole, boned, deviled and in tamales—cod fish, corned beef, crackers such as saltines, cheese crackers and cheese sticks, ham—sliced, whole, deviled or in loaf form—pig's feet, pickles, potted meats, pretzels, sandwich spreads, sardines, sauerkraut, sausages, tongue, tuna fish and veal loaf. And the odds are ten to one that the average housewife can think up many more.

The residents and business people of this district are considerably worked up regarding the proposed dismissal of the life guards; it is felt that at least one guard should be retained all the year round at Mission Beach, Ocean Beach and Pacific Beach, and two guards kept for the truck service. It is false economy to let these men out.

Florence Chadwick Wins Permanent Cup

Battling neck-and-neck with team mate for almost half the distance at the Oceanside round-the-pier swim last Sunday, Florence Chadwick, local aquatic star, came thru with a little more power, to beat out Mary Ann Hawkins of Los Angeles. Both girls reached shore at the same time and set out for the finish line, but Miss Chadwick crossed first.

The victory marked Florence's third in this annual event, and gave her undisputed possession of the women's perpetual trophy.

Harriet Werre of Mission Beach placed third in the women's race and Ronald Schofield, another local star, took third in the men's division.

NATIONAL DOLL WEEK COMES IN OCTOBER

San Diego will not overlook the observance of National Doll Week this year, for the Goodwill Industries are preparing an exhibit which will show a very large variety of dolls representing several nationalities. This celebration comes during the first week in October.

Supt. Myron Insko reports that his organization continues to grow, the payroll last month being the largest in its history and the continual calls for visits of the Goodwill trucks making the purchase of the fifth necessary.

The average number of employees daily last month was 49, the number of different persons employed being 135. Among these $2024.55 was paid out in wages during the month.

BREAKERS

Green and gray, in wild unrest,
Salt spray hurled on high,
Sea-horses dash with manes of spray,
On the ocean's shore to die.

Neptune's forces, in wild onslaught,
Bursts of emerald bright to be
Soon casting their galloping lives away
In a smother of foaming sea.

Sea-horses prancing, white manes flying,
Spindrift and sea-dust thrown high,—
Battling and crashing an age old shore,—
Roaring thrusts, and a dying sigh.

COCONUT PALM

A concentrated food containing every element necessary to sustain life and having six times more energy value, weight for weight, than most known foods, 120 calories to the ounce, has been recently developed at the research laboratories of McKesson & Robbins, Inc., at Bridgeport, Conn.

Named Manatone after the heaven-sent manna which is said to have rained upon the famished Israelites, it is composed of the few potent survivors of more than one thousand foods which were analyzed in the process of determining its formula. Developed primarily as an all-inclusive diet for convalescents it combines the exceptional characteristics of bulk, scientific nutritional balance and easy digestibility. Also because of this it is said to be ideally suited to the quick replenishment of energy requirements in growing children. It may be taken hot or cold in milk or water or sprinkled on cereal. Having many times the caloric count of other known nutritional concentrates, the unusual nature of this food is apparent. Moreover, results of feeding tests indicate that should the emergency arise, manatone and water alone could be used to sustain life for indefinite periods.

The elements of exceptional potency which comprise manatone are emulsified banana, malted milk, skim milk, whey powder, dextrose, lactose, maltose, sucrose, dextrins, cocoa flavoring and emulsified coconut meat. Inclusion of coconut raised the question as to the manner in which it could be added to the mixture. This was solved by grinding the rough fibrous meat, husk and all to extreme fineness. The resulting particles are so small as to defy detection except through a powerful microscope. It has been observed that when these particles enter the stomach they swell several times their original bulk and thus help provide work for the muscles of the digestive tract. This is a brand new characteristic for a concentrate food.

Other ingredients in addition to coconut are submitted to a similar process, thoroughly mixed, then shot at high speed through a spray nozzle into a vacuum tank. The nozzle through which this mass passes is no larger than the eye of a sewing needle. This process assures retention of the potency of vitamins A, B, C, D, E, G; of the 2:1 bone building phosphorus-calcium ratio, of the 1:1 fat-protein ratio, and of the essential mineral salts, carbohydrates, enzymes, and other ingredients. Thus, a remarkable food, the compounding of which has for years been a subject of scientific speculation, joins the list of agents upon which mankind can draw for improving health.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF TEMPLE MEETING, SUNDAY, SEPT. 13

"The Astral Light and Psychic Phenomena" will be discussed next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Temple of Peace, Theosophical International Headquarters, Point Loma. Boris de Zirkoff for twelve years a member of the headquarters staff will deliver the forum-lecture which it is hoped will stimulate thought so that many questions regarding the subject will be forth coming from the audience.

It is the lecturer's intention to endeavor to clarify "vague, erratic notions of what or what is not meant by the 'astral light' and its relationship to what is called phenomena in the phsycic realms."

"So little is known, yet so much is claimed to be known of this 'astral light'," says Zirkoff, "it is little wonder there is such bewilderment regarding what is really the Kosmic 'picture gallery'. Until the subject is approached philosophically, scieneifically, and religiously under proper tutelage the truth will not be known and understood."

All who are interested in this subject or other phases of phenomena to be treated Theosophically are cordially invited to be present Sunday afternoon and ask questions or make comments at the conclusion of the address.

BAPTIST CHURCH SERVICES

Rev. W. S. Dunn will occupy the pulpit next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock and his sermon subject will be "The Christian Hope."

At 6:30 p. m. the senior and junior B.Y. groups will meet in the school room to plan for the fall and winter work.

The service of song will be held at 7:30 p. m. at which time the pastor will speak on the subject "How Shall I Think?"

A cordial welcome awaits you at the services of this church.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Substance" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon on Sunday in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts. The Golden Text is from the epistle to the Hebrews: "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen."

Among the Bible verses in the Lesson-Sermon are the selections from the Proverbs: "I wisdom dwell with prudence, and find out knowledge of witty inventions. . . . Counsel is mine, and sound wisdom: I am understanding; I have strength. . . . My fruit is better than gold, yea, than fine gold; and my revenue than choice silver. I lead in the way of righteousness, in the midst of the paths of judgment: That I may cause those that love me to inherit substance; and I will fill their treasures."

A correlative passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, states: "That which material sense calls intangible, is found to be substance. What to material sense seems substance, becomes nothingness, as the sense-dream vanishes and reality appears."

BANK GROUPS MAKE NATIONWIDE SURVEY

American and State Banking Associations Collaborate in Investigation

LOAN SERVICES STUDIED

Activities of the Government in the Banking Field Are Reviewed and Position of Banks Analyzed

NEW YORK.—Detailed bank researches, covering all phases of practical operating and economic facts and conditions related to banking, are being made by the American Bankers Association. The resulting material is being placed at the disposal of all state banking associations, which in many instances are extending the researches of the national association in their own states. These activities are said to be a part of the general program of banking development which is being carried on by the organized banking business.

Among the most extensive researches being conducted by the American Bankers Association is that of its Committee on Banking Studies, which is making a detailed survey of Federal Government lending agencies and policies The basic material, which is kept up to date by continuing studies, shows where the Government agencies get the money they lend, what liability the Government assumes, what subsidy it extends, what return it gets, for what and to whom the money goes and on what terms it is loaned.

The Government in Banking

"It is not the intention of the committee to express its viewpoint about any agency," says the foreword to this material. "Its intention is only to determine the facts. These facts properly assembled and presented should help banks to meet Government competition if and where it exists. The committee believes the Government entered the lending field at a critical period in order to aid banks and financial institutions If the time has come for the Government to withdraw, it is the duty of bankers to demonstrate their readiness to take care of all sound credit needs."

It adds that the banks must be equipped with full factual material as to the Government's emergency lending activities and practices, and that full cooperation has been given the committee by Government agencies in obtaining facts. Binders of the material gathered have been placed by the committee in the hands of state associations.

Investigation of Postal Savings

The Committee on Banking Studies has also made a survey of the Postal Savings System throughout the United States to ascertain to what extent it is competing with chartered banks. Questionnaires were sent to banks in all places where Postal Savings depositories are operated and their answers will be analyzed as a basis for the committee's findings.

The Bank Management Commission of the American Bankers Association has made a nation-wide survey covering the movement among banks to increase their earning abilities "through fair and legitimate rates for services they render their depositors." It has developed a plan of account analysis as a basis of fair charges.

"All business in order to justify its existence is founded on the economic principle that a reasonable return should be expected from services rendered," the commission says.

Personal Income Loans

The Bank Management Commission has also formulated methods for installing and operating personal income loan departments in banks "This plan contemplates making loans primarily to individuals and small business concerns, based upon the character and assured incomes of the borrowers, as distinguished from the usual basis for 'commercial loans,'" the commission says.

It points out that a large part of the population is not now making use of available bank credit and that "to these people the personal loan department extends a valuable service which at the same time is profitable to the bank." It adds that it is "the duty of the banks to educate the public to come to the bank for all financial services. Small borrowers should be informed that the local bank is willing to care for their demands."

Other Researches

Other researches are being made by the Economic Policy Commission of the association dealing with shrinkages in liquid commercial loans caused by economic changes in the nation's business methods while the National Bank Division has made studies of the lending and investment powers of this class of bank, the present status of the real estate investment field and of detailed data by states on earnings and expenses.

The Savings Division has gathered the facts showing savings in banks of all types, the number of savings depositors, the per capita savings for the country as a whole and the effects of current economic and social changes upon the savings habits of the American people.

The association's State Bank Division has issued the most recent figures available as to the detailed conditions of state banks, showing steady improvement in the position of the state banks, with marked expansion in their aggregate resources, while the Trust Division has compiled a guide to fees with a recommended cost accounting system.

THE STAR

When you cried for the moon, dear
And we could not get it for you
Your daddy had one painted
And it looked like the real moon, too.
We hung it in your bedroom
Where every night it shone
Down upon wee white bed
And brought pleasant dreams
To your curly head.
Then as older you grew
You wanted a star
And we didn't know what to do
Until we took you to Hollywood
And made a star out of you.

GUNLOCK RANCH

by Frank H. Spearman

Copyright Frank H. Spearman WNU Service

SYNOPSIS

Sleepy Cat, desert town of the Southwest, is celebrating the Fourth of July. Jane Van Tambel, beautiful daughter of Gus Van Tambel, hated owner of Gunlock ranch, has arrived from the East for the first time. She watches the Frontier Day celebration in company with Dr. Carpy, crusty, tender-hearted friend of the community. Henry Sawdy of the Circle Dot ranch, tricked in a fake horse race the day before by Dave McCrossen, foreman at Gunlock, plans revenge. He enters Bill Denison, a handsome young Texas wrangler, in the rodeo which McCrossen is favored to win, and lays heavy bets on him with Harry Boland, saloonkeeper and crony of McCrossen. Unknown to the crowd, Denison is a champion horseman. McCrossen and the young stranger tie in the various events. They are then asked to propose their own stunts. McCrossen winning the toss, picks up a handkerchief from the ground riding full speed, facing backward. Denison easily follows suit.

It was now the Texan's turn. Sawdy ran out on the track to his side. "Give him the saddle-and-bridle trick," he whispered.

The wrangler, still breathing fast, demurred. "He's seen it done. Probably he can do it himself, Sawdy."

"No matter. It'll make a hit, tire him out."

"I'm getting tired of this show myself. It's been pretty long," objected the rider. "Leave it to me, will you? I'll give him one he's never seen—one you've never seen." There was a further whispered conference.

"Go to it!" exclaimed Sawdy, after a moment, seemingly confident of his representative. Then he turned to the little grandstand.

"Ladies 'n' gentlemen an' honorable judges," he began. "Circle Dot has tried to contribute in a humble way to your entertainment this afternoon. You're all anxious to see this contest, grand as it has been, brought to a decision. Our entry for the prize will now present a feat never before seen in Sleepy Cat."

Reining to the middle of the track, the wrangler drew from a buttoned breast pocket of his jersey a packet of cigarette papers and a small sack of tobacco. Seated on his pawing horse, he rolled his cigarette, put away the makings, hung the cigarette on his lip, and lifted his hat as he looked up at the spectators and felt in another pocket for a match. While doing so he awkwardly dropped the cigarette; it fell from his lip to the dusty track. He bent over in the saddle to look regretfully down at the cigarette where it lay; then turned his horse and slowly circled the offending object as he carefully scrutinized the lie.

Sawdy stepped to the side of the grandstand and, after his usual salutation, began, hat in hand: "Our Circle Dot wrangler seems to be a little awkward today—nervous, maybe. You see, ladies, he hasn't had such a bevy of elegant women to look at for many, many weeks. We've been on a long, hard drive an' haven't seen so much as a picture of a smart girl for nigh three months—no wonder he's nervous."

"Hear! Hear!" cried Carpy and his group. Sawdy, surprised, looked up. "Where?" he demanded. And getting only a laugh, continued:

"Whatever the reason, ladies an' gents, the boy has dropped his cigarette. He's makin' motions to me to pick it up. But it's too much to ask of a fat man. Let him pick up the cigarette himself. Go, boy, go!"

As the wrangler cantered leisurely down the track, Sawdy, as spieler, continued to explain:

"He will now try ridin' at top speed, to pick up his cigarette. If he succeeds, I am sure you will all be willin' to see him enjoy smokin' it, after a hard hour's work. If he fails under these speed conditions, he will retire as gracefully as possible from the track an' turn a similar job over to his esteemed rival. Our wrangler will use the quirt on his pony for the first time today. All we'll ask is, just please give the boy quiet when he rides up."

The wrangler had wheeled his horse fifty yards down the track and sat waiting for Sawdy's signal.

The cowman raised a warning hand. "Are you ready?" The wrangler nodded. "Go!" shouted Sawdy.

Quirting his pony smartly and bending in the saddle as the wiry little gelding sprang in long leaps ahead, the wrangler, nearing the stand, swung over to the right so low in the saddle that he trailed his hand in the dust. He was going very fast, and his job in this straining posture was to locate a narrow smudge of brown paper lying in yellow dust.

CHAPTER II

In the grandstand there was a craning of necks, a straining of eyes, and a hush.

Only the soft clatter of the pony's hoofs as he now flew down toward the grandstand struck the ear. A slender streak of dust rose from where the fingers trailed along the track. As he neared the vicinity of the cigarette, the wrangler lifted his fingers just above the dust and bent his straining eyes ahead. He passed the grandstand like a flash.

As he did so, his right hand was flung out, just once, and his fingers struck at the dust. He dashed ahead, straightened himself gradually in the saddle, and, holding his right hand high, checked the pony and rode slowly back.

The judges clambered down from their stand and ran out on the track. They looked in vain circles for a trace of the cigarette; stirred up the dust where it might be hidden. But the wrangler, riding back toward them, held the damaged cigarette between the thumb and the forefinger of his right hand.

Boland was wild. He rushed out to join the judges. "It's a plain trick!" he shouted. "He pretended to pick up one cigarette an' had another in his hand."

"Hell!" blurted out Bill Pardaloe. "Where's the cigarette he dropped here in the first place?" he asked, pointing to the track. "It was right here. I seen it." He appealed to the other judges, "You seen it." The two nodded assent. "What you talkin' about, Bo?" Boland was industriously searching the track. "Find it! But be damned careful you don't try to drop another cigarette like it! Watch him, John," warned Pardaloe, wrought up.

"The horse might have picked it up on his hoof," bellowed Boland. "Yes," commented Selwood. "Yes. Examine the pony's mouth, too, Boland. He may not have swallowed it yet. I say, gentlemen," he added, "the Circle Dot boy has done a clean job. Now let's see McCrossen perform."

But McCrossen, stubbornly rejecting all his backers' entreaties, refused to perform. "Wouldn't I be a sucker to try to beat a man at his own game?" he demanded.

"That trick's no part of frontier ridin'. It's never been done before at a Sleepy Cat celebration."

"It's progress, gentlemen; progress, I call it. If it ain't been done in Sleepy Cat, it's been done plenty at other celebrations. So you," thundered Sawdy, "want a brilliant crowd of fair women and brave men to set here year after year an' be bored stiff with the same old tricks? Gents!" he appealed to the judges, "I call for judgment."

The judges huddled. At a little distance Sawdy and Lefever huddled with the wrangler on the gelding. Presently Lefever stepped over to the judges. "Gents," he announced, "before you decide, we make another proposal. Our man will now undertake to duplicate any trick on a horse that the Gunlock champion wants to try. We want to be perfectly fair."

Again the Pony Took the Quirt.

"You mean," retorted Selwood, "you're mean enough to beat the boots off him an' carry away the boots. Well, Boland," he called out, turning to the saloon keeper, "you heard that. Do you want to take that challenge?"

"McCrossen has done all the tricks and done 'em well."

"If you decline," declared Selwood, "judgment for the fancy ridin' goes to Circle Dot. It is so ordered. Stop your yawp, Harry Boland."

Boland continued to protest, but the verdict, announced to the spectators, met with wild approval. They declined to let the wrangler go. They swarmed out on the track and refused to let him ride away.

He was assailed with cries. "Do it again! . . . Once more! . . . Again!"

Sawdy, after a conference with the favorite, made a stentorian announcement: "If you'll all get off the track and shut up," he began, "our lad will give you one more exhibition."

When the track was cleared and the men were again seated, the portly spieler continued: "To show there was no trick in the cigarette ride, and to show there's no collusion, I'll ask any lady in the audience to throw any little personal ornament of wear out on the track. Now hold on." He held up his hand in warning as several women began to search for something to throw out. "The object must be not too small to grasp. . . . A ring? Doubtful. . . . A hatpin? No, for God's sake, nothin' sharp. Hold still. That young lady next to Dr. Carpy"—he pointed—"isn't that a small bracelet I see on her left arm? Just the thing. Lady, if you'd lend us that bracelet for a minute, we'll show you some ridin'."

Sawdy was addressing Jane Van Tambel.

"Oh, I won't do it!" exclaimed Jane.

Sawdy looked pained, but kept his eye fixed on the bracelet. "Go ahead, girl, throw it out!" suggested Carpy.

"Never! The pony might step on it!" protested Jane.

Vexed, but unwilling to ignore the growing clamor of the spectators, Jane rose reluctantly, passed the slender gold band over her wrist, and, pausing for an awkward feminine throw, flung it out ungraciously on the track. The crowd applauded. Jane blushed.

The bracelet fell close to the grandstand side of the track. Sawdy thought too close, but the wrangler, riding over, nodded that he could make it.

The wrangler wheeled his horse, and cantered down the track. Wheeling again, he patted his pony's neck and headed up toward the grandstand. Again the pony took the quirt, leaped ahead, and, with the onlookers mostly standing to see and holding their breath, the wrangler dashed for the bracelet.

Once more he swung over to the right of his saddle till he could trail his hand easily along in the dust of the track. With eyes straining and every nerve taut, the wrangler, sighting the shining object, struck for it. At the same instant, out of perfect silence a sudden vicious yell rang from somewhere about the grandstand. The pony, startled, sprang straight sidewise, throwing his rider head first into the dust, and bolted across the track, dragging the wrangler, caught by one foot in the stirrup.

A murmur rose, breaking into cries of anger and shame. Every eye was fixed on the dragging rider.

The pony headed for the inside guard rail of the track fence. Half a dozen Circle Dot riders now shot after him. If the panic-stricken horse should leap the fence, he would dash the wrangler against it, probably to death.

But while the panicky spectators stared, speechless, the wrangler, dragged along at breakneck speed, shook loose his foot and, rolling with the momentum over and over on the track, sprang to his feet, covered with dust. The bolting pony cleared the fence and dashed across the field.

The angry wrangler steadied himself after a step or two, his eyes roving over the faces before him, striving to catch his breath. With his quirt still hanging from his wrist, his hair rumpled and his bronzed features dust-smeared, his shirt torn half off his back, and breathing hard and fast, he stood eyeing the crowd and raised his voice in a loud and clear drawl:

"If the calf that just bellowed for milk isn't too much of a coward to walk down here, I'll agree to bottle-feed him with a quirt."

There were a few applauding laughs, many murmurs, and a general feeling of uneasiness among the spectators.

Suddenly from the midst of a riot of men talking at the end of the grandstand near Jane came a clash of angry voices. The next instant a bald-headed man with keen gray eyes and a dyed mustache, scattering onlookers right and left, pushed his way out of the gathering crowd and, stretching out his arm, yelled at the three Circle Dot cowmen standing on the track beside the contrite pony. "Look-a-here, Texas!" yelled the bald-head, beckoning. "Come here, you! You too, Lefever! Quick!"

"It's Jake Spotts," said the excited Sawdy. "Come on, boys!" With Lefever, and followed by the wrangler, Sawdy hurried to the irate barber's side.

"There's the skunk that yelled," cried Spotts, almost beside himself as he pushed the wrangler forward, and pointed, "That yellow-faced skunk right there, Barney Rebstock!"

The grandstand emptied as if a cyclone had struck it.

"You're a liar," shouted the man accused, a slender, shrill-voiced, sharp-faced ranch hand. "I never did it."

A long-haired, mild voiced Indian standing near him spoke up: "Yes, you did. I stood right behind you. I heard you!"

Jane was sitting so close to the altercation she could have touched the nearest man. She rose in alarm. Dr. Carpy pushed her to his other side. She heard Sawdy thunder, "No more lyin', Barney! There's two witnesses."

That was almost all she could remember. There were a few more sharp words. Then the dusty wrangler, shortening his quirt, sprang at Rebstock, knocked off his hat with one hand, and with the other brought the heavy handle down savagely on Rebstock's forehead. Jane saw the red follow the blow like the cut of a knife.

There was instant uproar. McCrossen sprang forward to defend Rebstock. He was too late. His hand slipped to his gun holster. Carpy, jumping up, stood almost over the brawlers. "Hold on, there! Hold on!" he thundered. "The first man that draws a gun here, I'll run out of Sleepy Cat!"

Dr. Carpy was the only man in Sleepy Cat who could have done it. But his word was the last word in Sleepy Cat. No one cared to face his wrath. He turned to Jane. "Don't be frightened, girl. It's all over."

Cheers greeted the wrangler as he walked back with his cronies to where the contrite pony stood on the track. Although his attire was in much disarray, his manner put his hearers perfectly at ease. "I know," he said to those who had returned to the grandstand, and patting his mount, "that this generally well-behaved little Texas pony is as much ashamed of his conduct as I am, and I know he would like to apologize, if you'll give him a chance."

NEW PRESSURE LAMP PROTECTS EYESIGHT

Provides 300 Candlepower "Live" Natural Brilliance For Only 1c a Night

A new mantle lamp that protects your sight with 300 candlepower "live," air-pressure light is bringing "eye-health" to thousands of homes, especially in rural communities. This lamp gives 5 times more light than any mantle lamp which has no provision for air pressure. Special laboratory tests prove its brilliance is nearest like natural daylight . . . kind to eyes!

W. C. COLEMAN

W. C. Coleman, pioneer inventor of gas-pressure appliances, has spent 36 years perfecting this lamp. It makes its own gas . . . burns kerosene or gasoline. It operates for only 1c a night! It is clean, safe, and is an ornament in any home.

Eyestrain is caused by poor and insufficient light, and often results in serious damage to the eyes. Now, nobody need take chances with their precious sight. This new Coleman Lamp is so inexpensive that no one can afford to be without it. It provides plenty of light for every home need . . . for reading, sewing, studying, playing.

Readers of this paper can get full details of this remarkable lamp, including illustrations of the many beautiful models, by simply sending a postcard to W. C. Coleman, Dept. WU-171, Wichita, Kansas.

Many Fair Exhibitors Will Be Entered

With only four weeks remaining before the San Diego county fair opens its doors, officials of the Twenty-Second District Agricultural association this week worked feverishly in tabulating the thousands of entries already received in the many departments and to put the finishing touches to the $500,000 Del Mar plant where the Fair will be staged October 8 to 18.

Competing for nearly $40,000 in cash premiums, agriculturalists will contribute a variety of products comprising the most complete, colorful and educational displays ever assembled for a single event in this county's history.

The cream of the nation's trotting horses will vie in races highlighting the 11-day show's entertainment program. The Grand Circuit, for the first time in history, will swing west of the Mississippi to appear at San Diego's new race track and compete for more than $15,000 in cash awards. Sports followers thru-out southern California are anxiously waiting arrival of the trotters which will compete in the many race events scheduled for the Fair meeting.

James E. Frank, president of the Agricultural association and general manager of the Fair, yesterday announced that the agricultural displays will give Fair visitors a comprehensive view of the products that yield an annual income of $120,000,000 in San Diego caunty.

"The eager response of exhibitors," Franks said, "is proof that San Diego county is not only eager for a fair but is willing to support one on a large scale."
